

To the People of the Pleiades: Letter of Reception and Appreciation

Greatchain

November 11, 2024

I received your letter today. It was a letter I never expected. It was a big surprise, too. I especially appreciate for referring as superior to the Japanese culture and spirituality, notably for its intricacies that we ourselves usually are unaware of.

Using this occasion, let me explain why I hold back my real name (which you may well think impolite to). As you may know, I have recently been appointed (by God) as “Chosen One.”

As you may imagine, this causes troubles in various ways. The one who selected me for this position, perhaps, supposed it honor and bringing fame. But I definitely declined such an honor and fame, because I knew it will bring nothing but enmity and hate. Besides that, I rejected the offer of money for the same reason. I even refused to reveal my identity itself together with my photo right—except for legal use as a Japanese citizen.

This may sound an extreme form of sacrifice, bringing inconvenience, too. But I really don't want to become famous or rich where I find nearly everything unsound, not to say, corrupt.

My unusual popularity you may have wondered in your environments will, perhaps, be accounted for in this way.

Sincerely yours,

The Chosen One in Japan (let this be my signature)
